EFDI - ECOLOGICAL FUTURE DIVERSE AND INCLUSIVE

This means a sustainable future, diverse and inclusive.

EFDI is a European project of the Erasmus+ programme.

Partners of the project are:

Organisations for people with disabilities and Organisations for sustainable development and global responsibility.

WE WANT TO CONTRIBUTE TO A SOLUTION!

We all want to be well informed about climate protection.

This is the only way we can succeed in fight for a healthy planet.

In the EU project EFDI we develop inclusive information and education services.

In Germany, Austria, Romania and Slovakia, people with learning difficulties or disabilities
have tested these education services in workshops.

One theme was food production:

Where does our food come from?

What are the effects of production, packaging and transport on the environment?

The production of bottled water is very harmful to the environment.

Therefore, the participants spiced up tap water with local fruits and herbs. Then they tasted it together.

Another theme was biodiversity in nature:
How does the change in our environment affect the diversity of nature?
Because the climate changes also our environment changes.
Some animals or plants do not survive these changes.

In the workshop, the participants produced seed balls for better plant diversity.
These are small balls of earth, filled with various seeds.

You can give them away or plant them yourself.
Later, different plants grow from them.

What happens next in the EFDI project?

In June, people with and without disabilities from the four countries meet in Bucharest. Together they learn how to make a campaign themselves. In a campaign, people use public actions to draw attention to a specific problem, that affects society.

They will also develop a climate campaign themselves. There will be a short film about it.

At the end of the project, there will be EFDI conferences in all countries. We will also send out invitations.
